The word 'globalisation' is sometimes used to describe the trend towards a global economy and the way countries have developed closer interaction with each other, making it easier for companies and people to live, work, trade and travel overseas. From what you know, do you think this process has been generally good or bad for each of the following?

As you may know, decisions around lockdown rules are decided separately for England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. The UK Government in London makes decisions affecting England while the devolved governments in Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland make decisions for their respective countries. From what you know, do you think each of the following has generally done better or worse at limiting the spread of coronavirus, than the _UK Government in London_, or do you think they have performed about the same?
